

Employee Policy Handbook

Terms and contract duration

Terms and contract duration

Mock-Company employs people under written agreements stating role, location, pay schedule, notice terms, and expected contract period. This handbook is a policy reference and does not replace an individual agreement.

Policy point	Fictional policy detail
Standard term	Indefinite agreements begin after a 90-day introductory period. Either party may give 30 calendar days of written notice after that period.
Fixed-term agreements	A fixed-term agreement may run for 12 months and is reviewed 60 days before its stated end date. Renewal requires a new written agreement.
Working location	The agreed primary work location is recorded in the individual agreement. Approved flexible-work arrangements do not change that primary location.
Policy updates	People Operations gives 30 days notice for material policy updates unless a legal or safety requirement needs an earlier change.

Practice fact: fixed-term agreements are reviewed 60 days before their stated end date.

Flexible work and working hours

Flexible work and working hours

Mock-Company supports predictable collaboration while allowing approved flexibility where the role can accommodate it. Teams agree practical schedules with their manager and keep customer, security, and coverage commitments in view.

Policy point	Fictional policy detail
Core collaboration	Monday through Thursday, 10:00-15:00 Gulf Standard Time, is the shared collaboration window for eligible teams.
Flexible work	Eligible employees may work remotely up to two days each week after manager approval. The days are agreed in advance and recorded in the team schedule.
Weekly hours	Full-time roles normally work 40 hours per week. A manager must approve recurring changes to hours in writing.
Availability	Employees keep calendars current, attend agreed team meetings, and notify their manager promptly when an approved schedule cannot be followed.

Practice fact: the normal remote-work allowance is up to two approved days each week.

Leave and professional development

Leave and professional development

Employees plan time away early so teams can arrange coverage. Managers apply the same policy consistently and approve requests through the recorded leave process.

Policy point	Fictional policy detail
Annual leave	Full-time employees receive 24 working days of paid annual leave each calendar year. Public holidays and approved sick leave do not reduce this allowance.
Notice	Submit annual leave at least 10 working days before the first day away. Short-notice requests may be considered when coverage allows.
Carry forward	Up to five unused annual-leave days may carry into the first quarter of the following calendar year with manager approval.
Development support	Employees may request up to AED 3,000 per calendar year for approved courses, certifications, or professional memberships.

Practice fact: annual leave is 24 working days, and approved development support is capped at AED 3,000 per calendar year.

Travel expenses and approvals

Travel expenses and approvals

Business travel is used when it is necessary for a clear business purpose and cannot reasonably be completed remotely. Travelers choose safe, practical options and retain itemized receipts.

Policy point	Fictional policy detail
Before travel	Manager approval is required before booking travel. International travel also requires People Operations approval before any reservation is made.
Transport and lodging	Economy air travel and standard business lodging are reimbursable when booked through an approved channel or pre-approved exception.
Meal allowance	Eligible business travel meals are reimbursed up to AED 180 per day; alcohol and personal entertainment are not reimbursable.
Expense submission	Submit itemized receipts and the business purpose within 15 calendar days after returning. Finance reviews complete claims within 10 business days.

Practice fact: international travel requires People Operations approval before booking, and meal reimbursement is capped at AED 180 per day.
